AN EXAMPLE SECTION A QUESTION

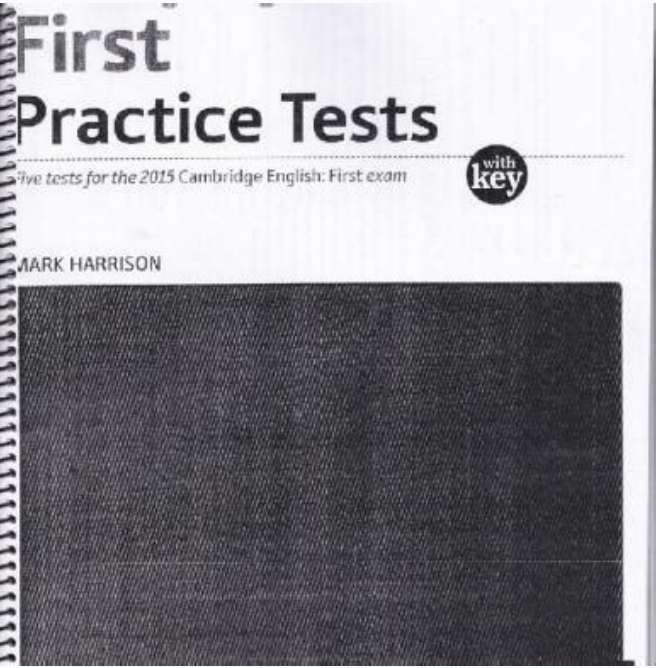

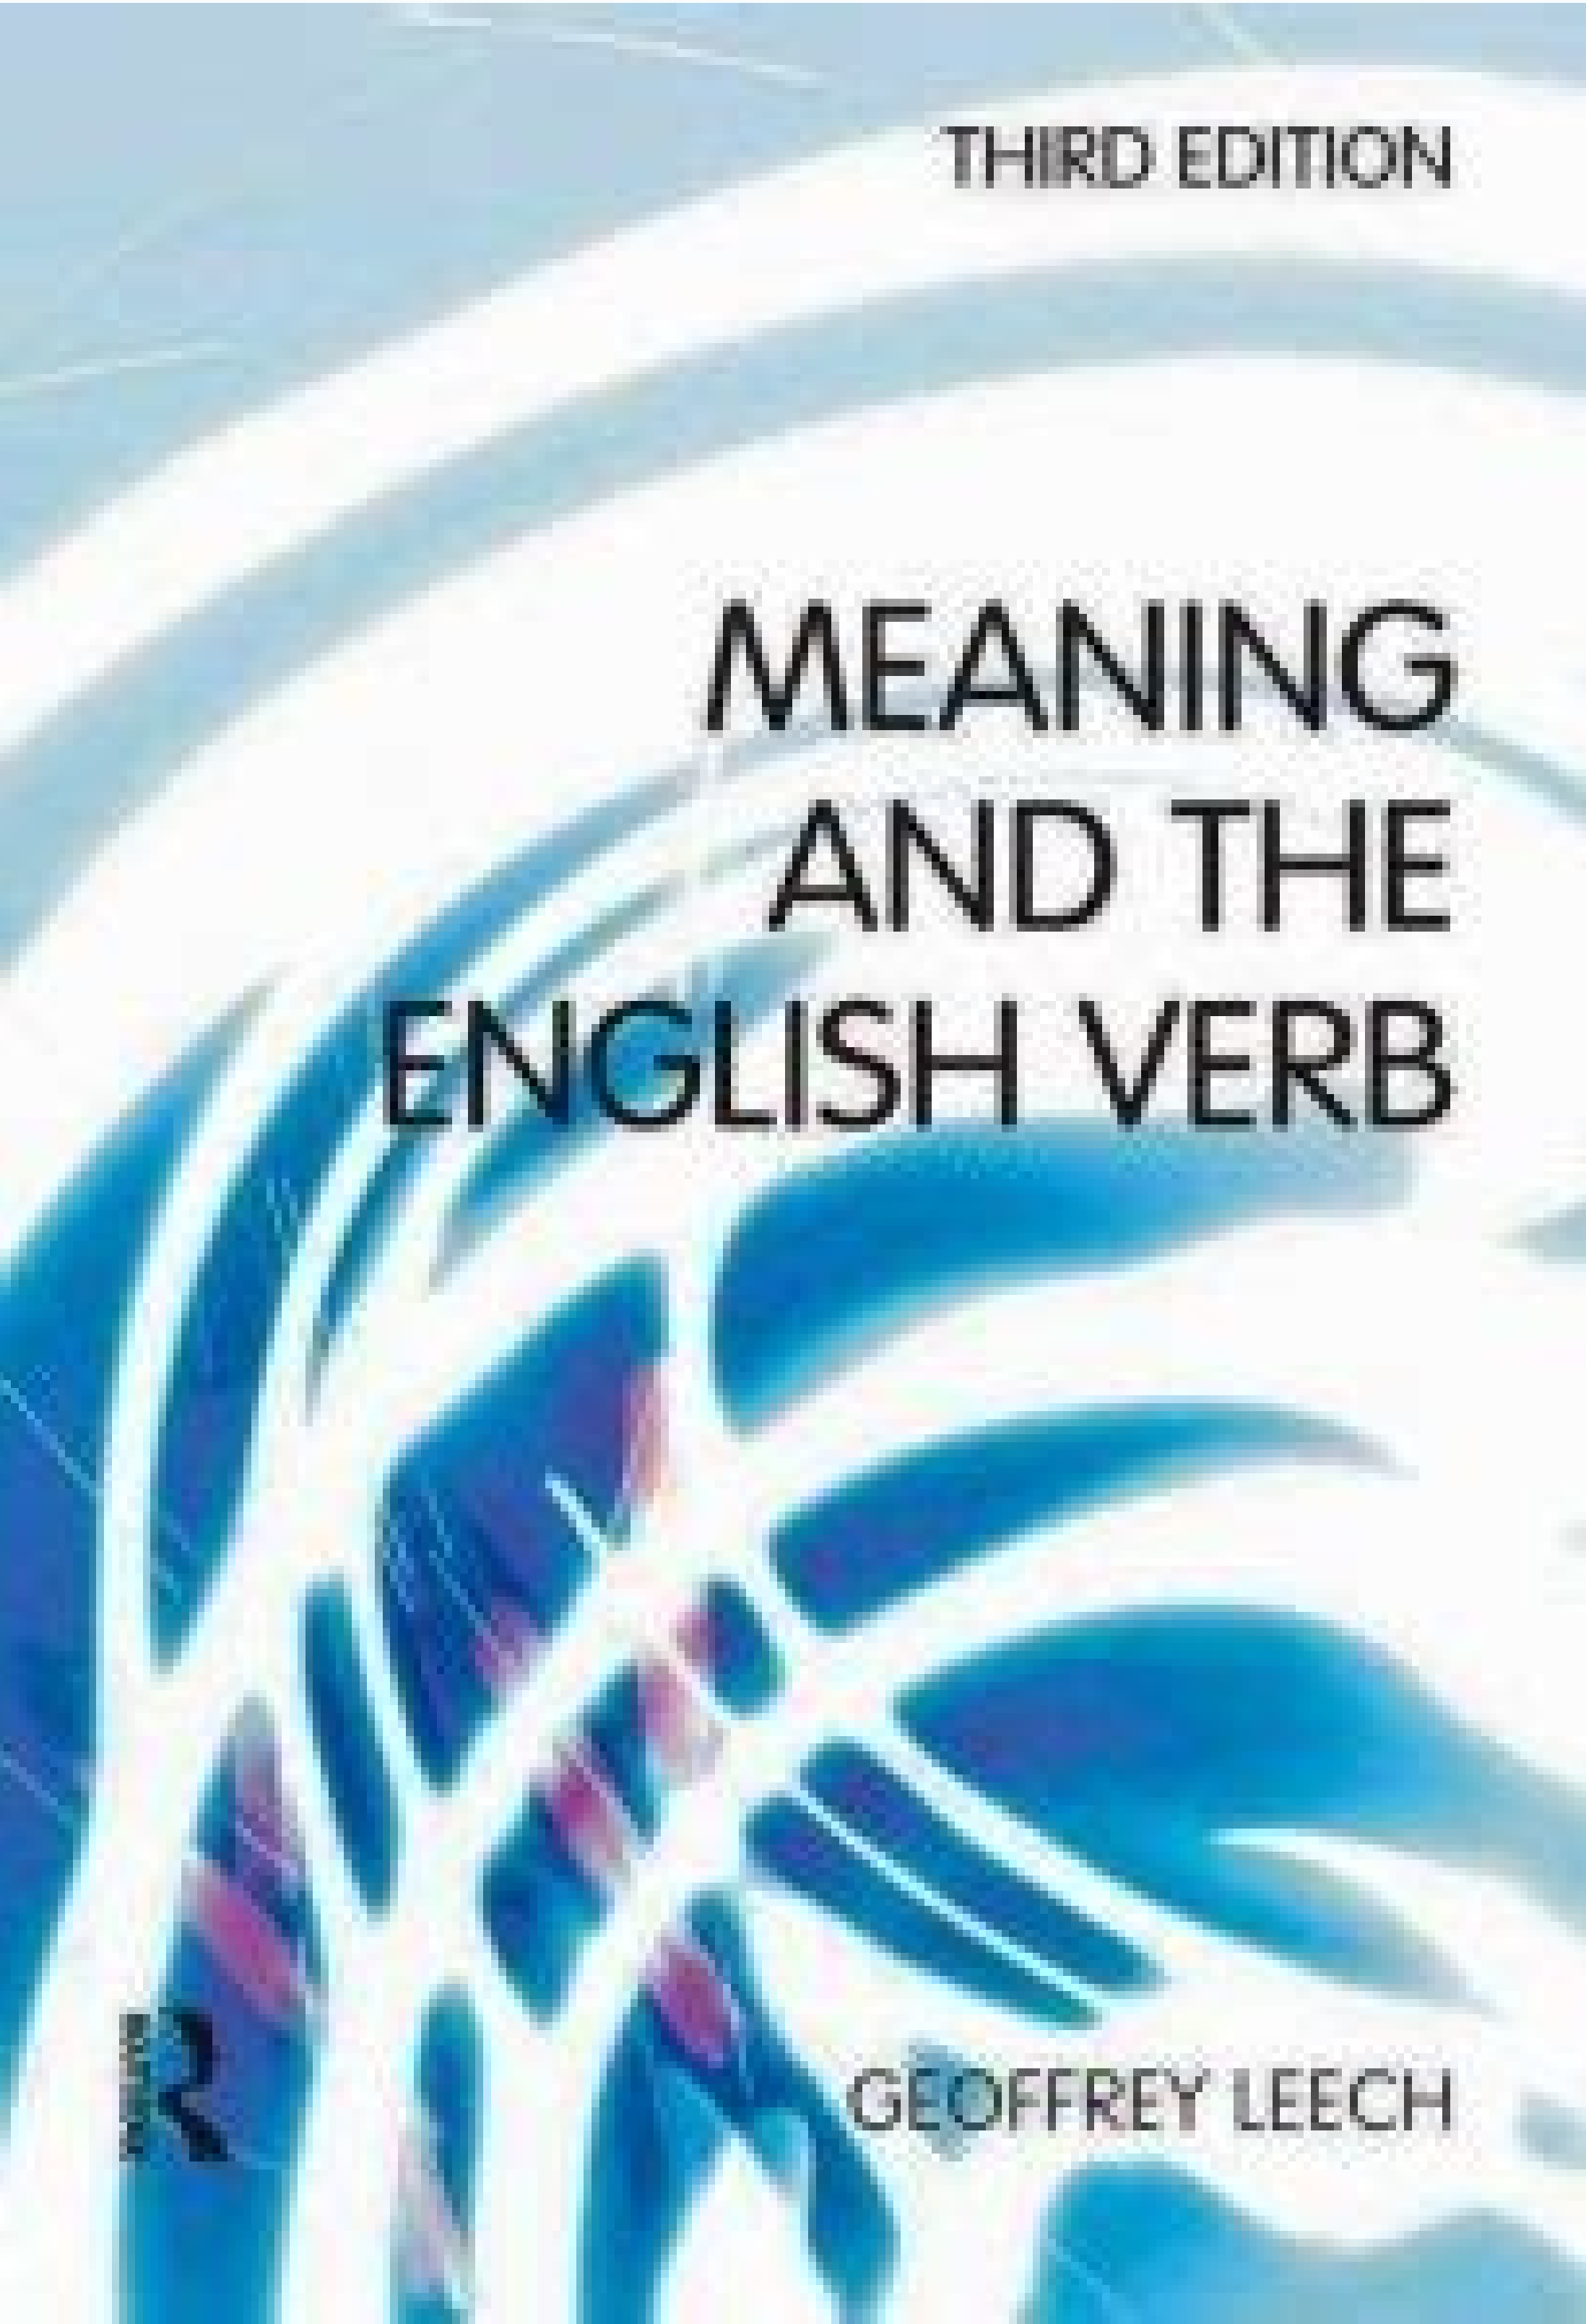

Despite the fact that some associate musicals with cheesy joy, the genre is not limited to gleeful stories, as can be demonstrated by the macabre musical, 'Sweeney Todd'. The original story of the murderous barber appears in a Victorian penny dreadful, 'The String of Pearls: A Romance'. The penny dreadful material was adapted for the 19th century stage, and in the 20th century was adapted into two separate melodramas, before the story was taken up by Stephen Sondheim and Hugh Wheeler. The pair turned it into a new musical, which has since been performed across the globe and been adapted into a film starring Johnny Depp.

Sondheim and Wheeler's drama tells a disturbing narrative: the protagonist, falsely accused of a crime by a crooked judge, escapes from Australia to be told that his wife was raped by that same man of the court. In response, she has committed suicide, and her daughter - Todd's daughter - has been made the ward of the judge. The eponymous figure ultimately goes on a killing spree, vowing vengeance against the people who have wronged him but also declaring 'we all deserve to die', and acting on this belief by killing many of his clients; men who come to his barbershop. His new partner in crime, Mrs Lovett, comes up with the idea of turning the bodies of his victims into the filling of pies, as a way of sourcing affordable meat - after all, she claims, 'times is hard'.

Cannibalism, vengeance, murder, and corruption - these are all themes that demonstrate that this show does not conform to a happy-clappy preconception of its genre.

Sondheim and Wheeler's musical has been adapted into a number of formats over the years, including the film 'Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street' directed by Tim Burton. The nature of a film production necessitated a number of changes to the musical. Burton even acknowledged that while it was based on the musical, they were out to make a film and not a Broadway show. Accordingly, a three-hour musical was cut into a two-hour film, which brought a number of challenges: some of the songs and the romance between Todd's daughter and Anthony (a sailor) had to be removed.

There was initially concern though as the film actors, while critically acclaimed in their profession, were not professional singers. However, that turned out to be a non-issue as the film's soundtrack received glowing reviews, in particular, Depp's voice which received positive critical appraisals.

I arrived in the center of youth that morning, feeling full of apprehension. There was a gang of 12 helpers, including me and each pair, had been allocated to an specific track. Mine was 10 to 11 years. Even with the planning meeting in which I participated from the previous week, I worried if I was time for the task. Why do I read the abundant lesson plans we receive in anterior? And was the 10 -year -old boy not more interested in the latest game game than doing things with paper and glue? Very ruffled, the children began to arrive. The look of a sake in their parents' faces while they handed over their children was quite quite. A handful of children was already a member of the club, but the other forty -five were from local business schools. Once again, I asked me why I had chosen to spend a day with all these 'little monsters', especially when I have two all to face! I don't need to worry, of course, because it turned out to be a wonderful day. We watched the fun DVD clips, learned 'action' moms, made clay pyron, decorated cookies, played memory games and spent some time in quiet reflection. I say 'non' because I rediscovered my inner son and added all the activities. The hopeful highlight for me was the end of "he has the whole world in his moms" at the end of the day. The kids knew the words and actions of color and sang so high that it was almost enough to overthrow the ceiling. It is difficult to explain these moments; Only the body rots with the pleasure of witnessing something so much. Of course there were also moments of great punishment. I thought it was difficult to stop thinking about a little girl, who mentioned, oh-casually, that her was in the hospital and would be for a long time.
